IV.

AN ACCOUNT OF THE SCOTTISH PSALTER OF A.D. 1566, CONTAINING THE PSALMS, CANTICLES, AND HYMNS, SET TO MUSIC IN FOUR PARTS, IN THE MANUSCRIPTS OF THOMAS WODE OR WOOD, VICAR OF SANCANDREUS. BY DAVID LAING, ESQ., FOR. SEC. S.A. SCOT. (PLATES LII.-LVI.)

In the "Illustrations" or Notes, which accompanied the re-issue, in 1839, of Johnson's "Scots Musical Museum," I attempted to give a chronological list of the earlier collections of Scottish Music. Although somewhat out of place, I also brought forward a few detached notices connected with the Church music of the Reformation, when describing the MS. Scottish Psalter, written and noted in four Parts by Thomas Wode or Wood, in 1566, who styled himself Vicar of St Andrews. Of these volumes, only two had been discovered, the one (supposed by mistake to be the Contra-Tenor part) having been presented to the Library of the University of Edinburgh in the year 1672, the other, the Bassus, had come into my own possession. On the supposition that these tunes were composed and harmonised for the special use of the Chapel Royal, it seemed in the opinion of competent judges to be quite hopeless from these two parts to ascertain the actual tunes or melodies. More recently, a simple solution of this difficulty was suggested by the editor of "The Scottish Metrical Psalter of A.D. 1635," who, after carefully examining the two manuscripts, says (p. 54)—"These volumes precisely follow the course of the printed Psalms—the first verse accompanying each tune, and the melodies being obviously the same. The Tenor volume, therefore, must have been merely a transcript of the tunes in the early editions of the Psalter; and if the fourth part or Contra could be found, the original harmony, as it stood seventy years earlier than that ultimately printed (in 1635), would be ascertained."

The chance of discovering an additional volume of Wood's Manuscripts seemed to be very unlikely; notwithstanding that, many years before, among the MSS. in the Library of Trinity College, Dublin, I came upon an unknown Fifth or Supplemental Volume to the Four books. It was with surprise, therefore, that I observed in the catalogue of a sale by auction at London, in May 1867, two volumes, containing the “Trebbil and Tennour,” described at some length, as “invaluable for the History of Sacred Music in Scotland.” I was, of course, desirous to secure these volumes, and the commission I sent for them fortunately proved successful.

The recovery of these additional volumes I consider indeed to be a matter of some importance, not merely for enabling us to form a correct notion of the tunes and harmonies of the Psalter as contained in Wood's Manuscripts, but from the light which his notes incidentally furnish respecting the state of Sacred Music in Scotland at the time of the Reformation.

In the numerous editions of the Metrical Psalms printed for the use of the Scottish Church, between 1565 to 1643, only the Church part, as it was called, or the melody, was given on the Tenor clef C, and not, as now, on the Treble clef G; leaving apparently the harmony to be supplied at discretion, according to the skill of the several congregations.

On this head the following passage may also be quoted from Dr E. F. Rimbault's Introduction to Este's Psalter of 1592, reprinted for the Musical Antiquarian Society, in 1844.

"There is a peculiarity in the mode of harmonising the Church tunes in the sixteenth and early part of the following century which requires notice. The melody or 'plain song,' as it is sometimes called, is given to the Tenor voice, and not, as in the generality of modern music, to the Treble. This mode of arrangement was derived from the Romish Church, where the Canto-fermo or plain song is to this day sung by men's voices. It was, no doubt, intended that the congregation should sing the tune (which from its pitch and compass would suit any kind of voice), and that the accompanying parts should be sung by a choir of voices. . . . The Cantus or upper part is the work of the arranger, whilst the Tenor (or line above the Bass, for it is sometimes written in the Alto clef) is invariably that of the melody or 'old church-tune.'"

The later English Psalter of Ravenscroft may also be noticed:—"The whole Booke of Psalms, with the Hymnes, Evangelicall, and Songs Spirituall: Composed into 4 parts. Newly corrected. By Tho. Ravenscroft." It was first published in 1621, 8vo. The four parts are named Cantus, Medius, Tenor or Playu Song, and Bassus. Prefixed is "An index of such Names of the Tunes of the Psalms, usually sung in Cathedrall Churches, Colegiats, Chappels, &c. As also, the forraigne Tunes usually sung in Great Britaine.

The names are given under the heads of English Tunes, Northerne Tunes, Scottish Tunes, Welch Tunes, &c. The Scottish Tunes given by Ravenscroft, are as follows:

The edition of the Psalms, printed at Edinburgh in 1635, is a memorable exception to those of an earlier date, as it contains all the four Parts, skilfully arranged, and professing to be derived from the best sources, by an unknown editor who signs his name "E. M." His words are, "I acknowledge sincerely the whole compositions of the parts to belong to the primest musicians that ever this kingdom had, as John Deane, Angus, Blackhall, Smith, Peebles, Sharp, Black, Buchan, and others, famous for their skill in this kind. I would be most unwilling to wrong such shinning-lights of this Art, by obscuring their Names, and arrogating anything to myselfe, which any wayes might derogate from them," &c. I was afterwards (in 1853) able to show that this ardent lover of sacred music was Edward Miller, A.M., who resided in Edinburgh, as a teacher of music, and who was one of the prebendaries of the Chapel Royal. Four years ago this edition was republished in a large and handsome form, accompanied with copious illustrations, under the following title:

"The Scottish Metrical Psalter of A.D. 1635, Reprinted from the original work; the Additional matter and various Readings found in the editions of 1565, &c. being appended, and the whole illustrated by Dissertations, Notes, and Facsimiles. Edited by the Rev. Neil Livingston." Glasgow, 1864. Folio.

Having succeeded in bringing together and re-uniting these MSS. volumes by Wood, after they had been separated for upwards of two centuries, I thought it might be worthy of the attention of the Society, while exhibiting the originals, to furnish a brief description of them, and to extract the characteristic notes by the zealous compiler. There is, indeed, one point on which I am not competent to give any opinion, viz., Whether the existing Harmonies might display such musical skill or genius as to warrant any scheme of printing in score a limited number of copies for subscribers. Should this communication be printed in the Society's Proceedings, I propose, at least, to introduce a few pages in facsimile, and also the tunes of two or three Psalms in the different parts, by way of specimen, from which some conclusion in regard to the harmony may be deduced. Wood himself gives no unhesitating commendation of their value, when he says, to any one having but a reasonable knowledge of music, these books "were worth their weight in gold."

In regard to this set of Psalm-tunes, it is now evident that while the melody or tune, as well as the words, were supplied from the earliest printed edition of what is called the Geneva Psalter (or, still more erroneously, Knox's Psalms and Liturgy), these tunes were harmonised by David Peebles, one of the canons of St Andrews, acting upon a desire expressed by Lord James Stewart, then Prior of St Andrews, who was created Earl of Murray, and became Regent of Scotland. His instructions were to avoid the intricacies or "curiosity" of musical composition, and to adopt a plain and sweet style best suited for general use. The importance of congregational singing in public worship cannot be overestimated, and the effects of a multitude of voices so employed is very striking. In this desire to have the ordinary Psalm Tunes accompanied with simple and easy harmonies, Lord James may have been influenced by what he himself had witnessed among the French Huguenots and in other Protestant Churches abroad. But Wood insinuates that "the Canon" of St Andrews was by no means very earnest in the matter, and that it was mainly owing to his own continued and persevering solicitations that the task was at length happily completed.

VOLUME FIRST.—Tenor.

This volume has a rude drawing, as a frontispiece, of an elderly man in a long gown, holding an open music book in his left hand, and a clarionet in his right. (See facsimile.) Over his head is written "Tenour," and in a scroll these lines—

"It may be knawin bo my hewinly haw
I am ane Man of mckill modestie,
And thairfor syngis my Part with notis most trew,
As it efferis vnto my facultie."

The number of tunes is one hundred and two—the remaining psalms in the printed copies being directed to be sung to one or other of these tunes.

In the MS. "Heere endes the Psalmes, set furth in iiiij partes, conforme to the Tennour of the Buke in 1566 (and followeth certain Canticles; and first Veni Creator, &c.), be ane honorable and singulare cunning [skilful] man Dauid Pables in Sanctandrous, and noted and wreaten be me Thomas Wode."

Towards the end of the volume is the following explanatory note, written after the Regent's death, in February 1569-70:—

"I haue thought gude to make it knawin wha sett the thre pairtes to and agreeable to the Tenor, or common pairt of the Psalme buke: the Mess and the Papisticall service abolished, and the preaching of the Euangell stablisit heir, into Sanct Androus, my Lord Jamis (wha efter wes Erle of Murray and Regent) being at the Reformation, Pryour of Sanct Androus, causes ane of his Channons, to name Dauid Pables, being ane of the cheiff Musitians into this land, to set three pairtes to the Tenor; and my Lord commandit the said Dauid to leave the curiosity of musike, and sa to make plaine and dulce, and sa he hes done: bot the said Dauid he wes not earnest; bot I being cum to this Toune, to remaine, I was ever requesting and solisting till thay wer all set; and the Canticles (like as Veni Creator, the Sang of Ambrose, the Sang of Mary, &c.) I oft did wreat to Maister Andro Blakehall, to Jhone Angus, and sum Andro Kempe set, sa I notit tenors, and send sum to Mussilbrough, and sum to Dunfarmling, and sa wer done: God grant wee use them all to his glory!—notwithstanding of this trauell I have taken, I cannot understand bot Musike sall pereishe in this land alutterlye and the mair . . . [some words cut off]. To ane great man that hes bot ane resonable gripe of musike thir Fyue Bukes wer worthy thair wayght of gould."
VOLUME SECOND.—Treble.

This volume has also a frontispiece, by Wood, of a young man in a green dress, holding in his right hand a large music book, and pointing with his left to the word "Triibill" (see facsimile): and higher up the following lines in a scroll:—

"My glistring colowr glorius and grene
Betaknis Youth, with glaid and mirry hart
Whilk euer dos with courage frome the spleine,
But preice or paine with pleisour syng my Part."

VOLUME THIRD.—Contra Tenor.

This volume has not been recovered. The one in the College Library, which was so called, has proved, upon comparison, to be a duplicate copy of the above volume, containing the Treble. It has no frontispiece.

Near the end of the original volume Second, Wood thus explains his object in undertaking the task of writing a duplicate set of the Four Parts; and it may render his statement more intelligible by noticing that a portion of the Psalms, begun by Sternhold and enlarged by Hopkins, and the English exiles, was printed with the music at Geneva in 1556. Three years later the number of the Psalms was extended to eighty-nine; and the complete version, as received by the Scottish Church, was first printed at Edinburgh in 1565.

"Turn bukis I begouth in the zeir of God J\textsuperscript{v}\textsuperscript{c}xij [1562] zeiris, and I rewlit, and wes in purpose to haue first wreatin the first vearce of euerilk Psalme that hes ane tune: and sum that knew this my purpose and preparation, desyrit me to stay a quhyle, for the heall Psalmis wes prinit in Genena and wer to cum heame shortly, and so I held my hand till the heall Psalmis com name, and I wreat the first vearce of euerilke Psalme that had ane tune put to it; and in lyk maner the Canticles and euer as I obteinit oyu to be set, did put them in heir till I had gottin them all. Efter this four or fyve zeiris I tuk uther threscore throwghis of lumbert paper and x or xii, and wreat all thir Psalmis and Canticles and notit them better and farer nor thay ar heir, and thay lyand besyde me thir mony zeiris unbund, for layke of the Kynges arms drawing be maister Jhone Geddy; and seing that maister Jhone forgettis and hes put me sa lang in houpe I purpose God willing to cause bind theme sa shortly as I may.”

At the end of the original volume of the Treble is the Canticle Si quis diliget me, “set be Dauid Pables in Four partis in the year of God 1530, or thairby; and ane noueice callit Francy Heagy, and was this Dauid Pables awin dissyple, set the Fyft pairt, a lytill before Pinky [1547] and that uerray weell.”

In the notes that follow, Wood has given a very interesting notice regarding the musical skill of King James the Fifth. He says—

“Now zee knaw that this is the Fyft pairt [of Si quis diliget] maid to the Four, as Dauid Pables first set it, and presentit the sam to KYNG JAMIS THE FYPT, quha wes ane musitian himself; he had ane singular gud eir, and culd sing that he had never sein before, but his voyce wes rawky and harske. I have said, in ane of thir bukis that Musik will pereishe, and this buko will shaw zou sum resons quhy: We se be expereience, that craft nor syence is not learntit bot to the end he may leiu be it quhen he has the craft or science; and if Doctor Farfax wer alyue in this cuntry he wald be contennit, and pereise for layk of mentinance; and sa of neid force it man dikeay.”

Robert Fairfax, here mentioned, was an eminent English composer during the reigns of Henry the Seventh and Henry the Eighth. He was of a Yorkshire family, and took the degree of Mus.D. in the University of Cambridge in the year 1504, and was incorporated at Oxford in 1511. His MS. collection of the most ancient English songs, to which music has been preserved, is well known to musical antiquarians. He was organist of the Abbey Church of St Alban’s, where he lies interred.

VOLUME FOURTH.—THE BASSUS.

In this volume, which is fully described in the Introduction to Johnson's "Musical Museum," p. xxviii., there is no frontispiece. Mr Stenhouse also mentions the volume in his Notes to that work, which although printed in 1820, remained unpublished till 1839. The MS. then belonged to the late Mr Blackwood, who obtained it from a sale by auction in Dublin; and after his decease, when a portion of his own stock was sold off in Edinburgh, I was fortunate enough to secure it. In that Introduction, at page 1xxxi., I referred to a duplicate volume wanting some leaves at the beginning and end, which had also fallen into my hands about the same time from the late Mr Constable's collection, but having lent the volume for the purpose of sending to England, it was for several years supposed to be lost; but was recovered not many months ago, and restored to myself as its owner. Like the one in the College Library, it proved, upon comparison, to be a volume of the Duplicate set which Wood had copied on what he calls lumbard paper. At the end of Psalm 23 is written “Thir four buikkis wes only pennit by me Thomas Wod Vicar of Sanct Androus, four zeiris laubours. THOMAS WOD Vicar of Sanctandrous, 1578.” As it was of no importance to me for completing the original set, I transferred the MS. to that Library, to stand alongside of its companion.

Of the early history of THOMAS WODE or Wood, Vicar of St Andrews, we have no certain information. His own words show that in 1562, he had joined the Reformers, and had commenced his labours on the music adapted to the metrical Psalms, and that in the course of four years his work in four books had been completed. Not being aware of any difference in date of the duplicate volumes, or that his explanatory notes were added at various times, I fell into the common mistake of supposing him to have held the office of Vicar for some years previous to 1566. At that period it was not unusual for one person to hold an office, while another enjoyed the teinds or emoluments; but the office itself of Vicar ceased to be recognised in the Presbyterian Church, although the vicarage teinds were assigned by special grant from the Crown as a stipend to Ministers or Readers. There is little doubt that Wood acted as Reader in one or other of the churches in Fife before he obtained a special grant of the Vicarage of St Andrews in 1576, by virtue of which he assumed the title Vicar of St Andrews.¹ During a vacancy at St Andrews, in the Register of the Thirds of Benefices for 1574, the stipend is entered as being “The haill fruities of the vicarage, vacand be deceis of umquhill Mr Adam Hariot” [minister of Aberdeen, who died in 1574]. From the Register of the Privy Seal, we further learn, that on the 21st March 1575–6, Thomas Wood having obtained from

ACCOUNT OF THE SCOTTISH PSALTER OF 1566.

"My Lord Regentis Grace a presentation to the vicarage of Sanct Androis, Mr John Wynrame, superintendent of Fyfe, was charged to admit him to the said vicarage." Wood not having taken his degree of A.M. at the University, he cannot be identified with "Maister Thomas Wood," reader at Largo in 1574, who became minister of Carnbee in 1576.¹

VOLUME FIFTH, or SUPPLEMENT.

This volume, preserved among the MSS. in Trinity College Library, Dublin, has already been mentioned. It is a thin volume, pp. 112, besides the Tables, lettered "Airs and Sonnets." It has no ornamental capital letters, but on the first page is a small unfinished sketch of a knight on horseback. But Wood's portion extends only to page 33. The title he gives it is as follows:

"This is the Fyft Buke, addit to the four Psalme Bukkis, for Songis of four or fyue Pairtis, meit and apt for Musitians to recreat thair spirititis when as they shall be ouercum with heuines or any kynd of sadnes, not only Musitians, but also euin to the ignorant of a gentle nature, hearing shal be conforted, and be mirry with us. 1569."

The volumes of the original set, consisting of the Four Books and of this Supplement, after Wood's death, appear to have come into the possession of some person fond of music, who has inserted on the blank leaves at the end of each of the parts, a number of secular airs. They are written in a neat small hand, which I have not been able to identify.² Stenhouse, in his Notes in one or two places, has referred to these airs contained in the Bassus volume, as if they had actually been written by Wood in 1566. Most of the words and tunes are evidently copied from English collections of a later date, and I should imagine the hand to be not earlier than the year 1620.

³ It is curious that four of these volumes should have cast up in Ireland. The Bassus came, as already stated, from a sale in Dublin; the Supplement is in Trinity College Library there; and the two recently acquired had belonged (I was informed) to a deceased Irish clergyman, who held the office of Vicar-Choral of St Canice Cathedral, Kilkenny. The missing volume, therefore, may be still existing in Ireland.

VOL. VII. PART II.
The admirable facsimiles of the Manuscripts given to illustrate these notices have been executed by Mr Gibb of Aberdeen, a fellow of the Society of Antiquaries. They consist of the two frontispieces, with the opposite pages containing the Tenor and Treble of Psalm First; and the Bassus of the same Psalm; portions of Psalm cxxxvii., "By the rivers of Babylon," with the ornamented borders from two of the MSS. which represent various musical instruments. Also the colophon; and on separate pages, Psalms c., cxxiv., cxxxvii., and cxlix., in three parts are brought together with the music (but not as facsimiles), to furnish the reader with the means of ascertaining the tune and harmony.

Subjoined to the Psalms are several Canticles or Church Hymns, much the same as those which accompany the older editions of the English Psalm Books of Sternhold and Hopkins, set in four or five parts. The titles and first words with the names of the several composers may be added as given by Wood, without repeating the minute particulars regarding their history, in the Introduction to the "Scots Musical Museum."

Dean John Angus, one of the conventual brethren of the Abbey of Dunfermline, was born about the year 1515. I have his signature in some deeds relating to the property of the Abbey Church, in 1543, &c. Having joined the Protestants, at a later period, he obtained a pension, and also a living connected with the Chapel Royal of Stirling. Wood speaks of him in affectionate terms as "gude Angus," "gude and meike John Angus." He died before the 2d of March 1596-7.

Mr Andrew Blackhall, at the time of the Reformation, was a Canon of the Abbey of Holyrood House. He became one of the Protestant ministers, and was first settled at Ormiston, in East Lothian, in 1567. In 1574, he was translated to the large and important parish of Inveresk or Musselburgh, where he continued till his death on the 31st January 1609. When the old church at Inveresk was pulled down and rebuilt in 1806 there was fixed on the outer wall, near the south porch, a large slab, with an inscription to the memory of the Rev. John Williamson, who died in 1740. At the top of this slab it is recorded that his predecessor, Blackhall, was aged 73 when he died on 31st January 1609. There is probably a mistake of ten years in regard to his age, as otherwise, in October 1593, he would only have been 57, when he applied to the Synod, "in respect of his age and the greatness of the congregation," for a helper or a second minister to the parish.

Sir John Futhie, a priest, celebrated as an organist, returned to Scotland in 1532. In his Fifth book, Wood says that he was still living in 1592, when he must have attained a very advanced age. "O God abufe, &c., in iiiij pairtis, composit be Sir Jhone Futhy, bayth letter and note. This man wes the first Organeist that euer brought in Scotland the curious new fingering and playing on Organs, and yit it is mair nor threescore yeiris since he com hame: This is wreatin J"m v" fourscore and xij [1592]"

Francis Heagie is mentioned by Wood as a "disciple of David Peblis." See Supra.

Robert Johnson was "ane Scottis priest born in Dunse," who fled, before the Reformation, to England, having been accused of heresy.

Andrew Kemp was master of the Sang or Music School at Aberdeen in 1570. To one of the additional airs, Wood adds,—"Quod Kemp, and noted (written) be his awin hand, and not myne."

James Lawder, a chaplain in the Collegiate Church of St Giles, Edinburgh, in 1552–53. In Wood's MS. he has inserted a tune with the title of "My Lord Marche's Paven" (a name given to a grave and stately dance), set by Lawder in 1584.

David Peblis, one of the conventual brethren of the Abbey Church of St Andrews, died in December 1579. Wood calls him "ane of the principal musicians in all this land, in his tyme. This sang [Si quis diligit me in V pairtis] was set about the zeir of God I"m v" xxx. [1530] zeiris." From Wood's statement, already given, we learn that most of the Psalm tunes in these MS. volumes were harmonised at the instigation of the Earl of Murray, then Prior of St Andrews, and afterwards Regent.

The M.S. not recovered
All people that on earth do dwell, Sing to the Lord with cheerful voice.
Him serve with fear, his praise forth tell, Come ye before him and rejoice.

Now Israel may say, and that truly, If that the Lord

Psalme; CXIV.

O Lord that art my God and King, Undoubtedly I will thee praise.

I will extoll and bless and sing, Unto thy holy name alwayes,

From day to day I will thee bless, And laude thy Name world without end,
For great is God, most worthy praise, whose greatness none may comprehend.

Sing unto ye Lord with hearty accord, A new joyfull song:

His praises resound In everie grounde, His Saintes all among.
