

Meetings of the Society 1993–4

Held in the Lecture Theatre of the Royal Museum of Scotland.

Monday 13 December 1993

The following communication was read:

‘The Cluniac Monastery of Paisley: an initial investigation’, by John Malden, FMA FSA Scot.

Monday 10 January 1994

The following communication was read:

‘The Architecture of the Scots Renaissance’, by Aonghus MacKechnie, MA FSA Scot.

Monday 14 February 1994

The following communication was read:

‘Early medieval Carlisle: the development of an Anglo-Scottish town to the late 13th Century’, by Mike McCarthy, BA FSA.

Monday 14 March 1994

The following communication was read:

‘Adomnán, Iona and the cult of the Saints’, by Thomas Owen Clancy, MA PhD.

Monday 11 April 1994

This Lecture being part of the Edinburgh International Science Festival, the President offered a welcome to members of the public.

The following communication was read:

‘The Lairg Project: the prehistory of a Highland landscape’, by Roderick McCullagh, BA DipArchSci FSA Scot.

Monday 9 May 1994

This Lecture was the joint lecture with the Prehistoric Society.

The following communication was read:

‘Cannibals and Carnivores: Pontnewydd Cave and the earliest Palaeolithic of Wales’, by Stephen Aldhouse-Green, BA PhD FSA.

Monday 13 June 1994

This being the Society’s Annual Public Lecture, the President offered a welcome to members of the public.

The following communication was read:

‘Tea and Taste: Glasgow tea rooms 1875–1975’, by Perilla Kinchin.

Monday 10 October 1994

The following communication was read:

‘Demon Drink and Delightful Domesticity: Temperance imagery in the 19th Century’ by Mark E P Jones, Director, National Museums of Scotland.

Monday 14 November 1994

The following communication was read:

‘Seventy-five Years on: the Treasure of Traprain and its place in the study of late Roman silver’, by Catherine Johns BA, FSA.