THREE EARLY SEVENTEENTH-CENTURY TRADESMEN'S ACCOUNTS,
 RENDERED TO THE EARL AND COUNTESS OF ANGUS, 1618-1628.
 BY R. SCOTT-MONCRIEFF, Secretary.

The three accounts which I have the pleasure of bringing to the notice of the Fellows of the Society, and which are appended hereto, are doubly interesting documents, in that not only are they intrinsically instructive, but that they are amongst the earliest, if not the earliest, detailed tradesmen's accounts which are left to us. They are for clothing materials supplied to the Earl of Angus and his family during the years 1618, 1627, and 1628, and although no doubt there are earlier references to be got as to clothing and its cost from the published accounts of purchasers, I know of no published accounts as rendered by the sellers of earlier date. Naturally a tradesman's accounts are stated in much greater detail than the corresponding entries in a customer's accounts, and these three accounts are therefore most exhaustive in the information they give us. Hats and hose, bonnets and breeks, waistcoats and welycoats, shirts and shanks, pins and points, buttons and buckram, ribbons and ruffles, kirk cushions and saddle-cloths, all are there. It will be noted, however, that it is material alone that is dealt with, the actual tailoring being no doubt done in the Earl's house, as was customary then and for long afterwards.

Before turning to the accounts, allow me to say a word or two as to the customers.

William Douglas, eleventh Earl of Angus, was born in 1589, and was the son of William Douglas, tenth Earl, and Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Laurence, Lord Oliphant. In 1601, at the age of twelve, he married a daughter of Claud Hamilton, Lord Paisley—Margaret Hamilton, who died in 1623. He succeeded to the title in 1611; married, for the second time, in 1632, Lady Mary Gordon, daughter of George, Marquis of Huntly; was created a marquis by Charles I. in 1633; and died in 1660. As his eldest son, Archibald, predeceased him, he was succeeded by his grandson. By his two wives he had a family of sixteen children, six boys and ten girls. The following children, who must of course have been by his first wife, are mentioned in the accounts, viz. his eldest son, Lord Douglas, his sons James and William, and his daughters, Margaret, Jean, Grizell, and Anna.

The Earl does not seem to have taken much part in the politics of the day. He had a leaning to Catholicism, or at least to Episcopacy, and, in spite of having cushions made for his "kirk chyre," he displayed a lamentable want of zeal in either attending the parish church himself or in compelling his family to do so. He was therefore an object of considerable suspicion to the Presbyterian party, and in particular to his own Presbytery of Lanark, who were compelled to send deputations to him on several occasions for neglecting religious observances. The irritation of these frequent visitations was probably the cause of his constant long sojourns on the Continent. He was doubtless a Covenanter in that he had signed the Covenant, but one cannot help feeling that he must have done so against the grain. In any case, in 1639 he allowed Douglas Castle to be occupied by the Covenanters and joined Montrose. He was present at the battle of Philiphaugh, from which he escaped. He was afterwards captured and confined in Edinburgh Castle, and was lucky to be allowed to regain his freedom simply on payment of a fine. He had still, however, to settle with the Church, and it was not until he had confessed to his breach of the Covenant and made a public acknowledgment and reaffirmation that he was left in peace. In 1654 he was again in difficulties with the authorities, on this occasion having to deal with Cromwell, who fined him £1000, although only a third of this sum was actually exacted.

His eldest son, Archibald, who figures in these accounts as Lord Douglas, seems genuinely to have favoured the side of the Covenanters.

He was born in 1609 and married, first, in 1628, Lady Anna Stewart, daughter of Esmé, third Duke of Lennox. This lady died on 16th August 1649, when he married again, in 1649, Lady Jean Wemyss, daughter of David, second Earl of Wemyss. Lord Douglas was created Earl of Angus and Ormond in 1651, the titles of Earls of Ormond, Lords Bothwell and Hartsyde being entailed on the heirs male of his second marriage. As already stated, he predeceased his father.

Of the other children of the Earl of Angus who are mentioned in these accounts, Lord William probably died unmarried before 1632; Lord James became Colonel of the Scots Guards in France; Lady Margaret married Lord Alexander, eldest son of the first Earl of Stirling; Lady Jean married John Hamilton, first Lord Bargany; Lady Grizell married Sir William Carmichael of that ilk; and Lady Anna died unmarried.

There are also mentioned in these accounts Lady Elizabeth and Lady Mary, sisters of the Earl, the former of whom married, in 1627, John Campbell of Cawdor, the latter becoming the second wife of Alexander, second Earl of Linlithgow.

Full information regarding the Earl of Angus and his sons will be found in the second volume of Sir William Fraser's Douglas Book.

Turning to the accounts themselves, the first begins on 14th May 1618 and ends 16th July 1619. It is rendered to the "Earl and Countess of Angus" by Thomas Adinstoun, probably a merchant in Edinburgh, and the first entry is, "Item Restis unpayit of your Lo/ preceeding Compt £519, 9s. 4d." Scots. The total amount of the account comes to £1820, 18s. 0d. Scots, or £151, 14s. 10d. sterling. It contains everything connected with clothing: cloths of all sorts and colours, thread, papers of pins by the dozen, buttons by the score, laces, points, etc. Lady Mary is supplied with "vi quarteris slyre," a kind of fine lawn the use of which was afterwards, in 1621, forbidden by an Act of Parliament to any but the Royal Family. My Lord Douglas gets "xii ells iij quarteris gridelin waterit camlot to be ane challmer gown"; "the bairne William," his younger brother, gets pastments or lace edgings for his cot; the bairns James and Jein get all sorts of garments—green bonnets, and "welycotes"; green baize is got for "my Ladyis studdie," and, as already mentioned, cushions are made for the church chairs. Masquerades would seem to be indicated by the purchase of "vi ellis half ell quhyt singill fustiane to be millar clothes," and "ane welvet mask." The most curious entry, however, is under 5th September 1618: "Item debursit for ane auld manis heid xvs." What it means I have no idea.

The second account begins on 21st February 1627 and ends in December 1628, thus covering a period of nearly two years. The account is rendered to the Earl of Angus by James Rae, merchant in Edinburgh, and amongst other matters of interest it contains, under date August 1627, a number of entries relating to materials supplied "for Lady Elisabeth, your Lo. sister," who was married in that year to John Campbell of Cawdor, as already mentioned. She is provided with black damasein and "incarnadien spanis taffitie," satin buttons, incarnit ribbons, and a pair of yellow worsted hose, etc. She also gets riding-clothes of red cloth with three dozen knap buttons and a red saddle-cloth. Probably these clothes were part of her trousseau. We also learn that "ane blak inglis hat" for his Lordship cost £6 Scots (10s. sterling), while a gray one for his son William cost a trifle more, that 7 quarters of fine scarlet cloth, "to be my Lord Douglas ane pair of breiks," cost £29, 3s. 4d. Scots (£2, 8s. 7½d.), that "worsit hois" for Lady Margaret and Lady Jean cost £3, 6s. 8d. Scots per pair (5s. 6⅔d.), while Lady Grisell had to be content with a pair at 1s. Scots or 1d. sterling; that "ane quarter of schage to be your Lordships sones pittigog" cost £19, 5s. Scots (£1, 12s. 1d.), and that 3½ ells "reid steming to be your Lordships bairns schanks," cost £9, 6s. 8d. Scots (15s. 6⅔d.). Two or three entries refer to the purchase of "pepingo waterit camlit" and "pepingo green camlit." The bird known as the pepingo or popinjay was the mark in the archery competitions of the day, and the word is no doubt used here to denote the colour of the material in the same way as we talk of peacock blue. "Philip and Schina" is also frequently mentioned, and is written sometimes as three words, sometimes as one. "Schina" is also purchased separately, and the entries indicate that "philipand-schina" was a material, and not a pattern as sometimes supposed. "His Lordship's nichtcops," we learn, were made out of cambrick, and Lady Margaret's "nicht mutches" out of holland. Saddle-cloths and leather belting were also supplied and "oring hand fethers" which presumably means a feather fan. "Ane Ibon hand" was also got, at a cost of 13s. 4d. Scots, to scratch the back of some member of the family, or perhaps for general use, as no particular name is mentioned in the entry.

The last account is that of my Lord Douglas to William Mitchellsoun, merchant, Edinburgh, which "compt my Lord Angus has taken upone him to pay." It is dated 4th October 1627, and is an account of a more or less complete outfit of such a magnificent nature that one cannot help concluding that it was for his marriage, which took place not long thereafter. There is a suit of scarlet and crimson, lined with plush, trimmed with gold lace, and fastened with "gold knape," and "gold purlit" buttons. The points are of crimson silk, and there is a "lang craige button of gold weighing 1 oz. and  $\frac{1}{2}$  drop" for the neck. Then there is a fine black castor hat with a fine gold hat-band and bandoleer belt and boot-tops of leather embroidered with gold. His sarks and napkins are of fine small holland, and his "collar claith and rouffis" of fine cambrick. My Lord's attendants are no less brilliantly clothed, if less expensively. His footboy is clad in fine red cairsay with four dozen of buttons and blue ribbon points, and his serving-men in red calico, also well be-buttoned with red ribbon points. The whole account amounts to £544, 10s. 6d. Scots, or £45, 7s.  $6\frac{1}{2}$ d. stg.

As the accounts are a regular quarry of information it is proposed to print them in full.
