

9 ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The authors would like to thank those colleagues who provided assistance and advice in various ways: Patrick Ashmore, Mike Church, Geraint Coles, Trevor Cowie, Simon Gilmour, Professor Dennis Harding, Kevin Grant, Kevin Hicks, Robert Johnston, Rod McCullagh, Clare Peters and Professor Ian Ralston. We would also like to thank Corinne McCulloch and Robyn Inglis for permission to use unpublished BSc dissertations. Illustrations are by Andrew McCarthy, George Mudie and Graeme Warren.

Graeme Warren would like to thank Chantal Conneller for discussion of the unusual backed fragment, Alan Saville for assistance in the identification of the pitchstone and Brian Jackson for discussion of banded/baked shales. Thin-sections were prepared by Dr E A Fitzpatrick of the Dept of Plant and Soil Science, University of Aberdeen.

The project was directed by Catherine Flitcroft and Melanie Johnson, who are especially grateful to Callum Mitchell and Sarah-Jane Haston, without whom the excavation seasons would not have run so smoothly, and who would also like to thank all of the students who worked on the site during excavation and post-excavation.

The excavations were funded by Historic Scotland, The Carnegie Trust, The Russell Trust, The Royal Archaeological Institute, The University of Edinburgh Development & Alumni Fund, The Abercromby Trust and The University of Edinburgh Travel Fund. Post-excavation and publication was funded by Historic Scotland and The Russell Trust. Assistance and support in kind was provided throughout the project by the Archaeology department, University of Edinburgh.

While thanks are due to the above, responsibility for the final form and content of the paper lies with the authors.
